SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED!

During the last few days a great change has occurred at the Prep School, a change which not only meets the full approval of the faculty, but which also has received much praise from the student body. For on the momentous day under discussion your Argo representative, tired and thirsty, stopped wearily at the bubbler in the side hall. Cynically preparing for the usual flood of lukewarm water, he pushed the button and, wonder of wonders, a clear flow of cool, delicious liquid gushed forth! He at first thought that he was dreaming—that the French examination had been too much for him. But second and third checks obtained the same result, and he was forced to accept the fact's veracity.

Now almost everyone in school knows of the fountain. Almost every student has at one time or other been fooled by its resemblance to a water-purveyor, and received a mouthful of brackish wet. But few have been hardy enough to continue hopefully testing the device. Therefore the Argo, following its well-known policy of being first with the news, takes this opportunity of announcing that henceforth COLD WATER may be obtained in the hall.

Perhaps this is merely one stage of the general sprucing-up program now going on at the school. If so, perhaps it might be useful for the proper authorities to hear a few helpful suggestions.

RUTGERS PREP AND THE WAR

The average Rutgers Prep student may not be aware of the part he is playing in our present crisis, but nonetheless he is a cog in the gigantic machine which the United States is constructing to crush the Axis.

Of most importance is the fact that each Prep student is contributing ten cents a week to purchase defense stamps for the school. This fund has already reached $70 and will total from $150 to $200 before the school year is up. Although this amount represents only a drop in the bucket in consideration of the tremendous amount of capital needed for the war, it is significant of the coordinated action on the part of the American people to insure ultimate victory. Witness only the telegram received by the school from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau as evidence of the importance of the action of the Prep students.

At the Traps, butter is being rationed, and soon sugar coupons will be issued to every man, woman, and child in the United States to insure fair division of that commodity. Tires and automobiles are being rationed, and other products, considered as necessities in everyday life, are being sacrificed for the manufacture of war materials. Directly or indirectly, every Prep student is affected by these changes in industry.

Furthermore, school is being shortened this year to enable some Seniors to enter college early in June or others to fill positions in defense industries or take the places of men who have entered defense work. Already one Prep student has entered the service and some others may do the same during the summer recess.

The importance of the secondary school student cannot be underestimated for in many cases he is doing his part with more cheerfulness and efficiency than the government.

NEWS and VIEWS

By Bob Beaudette

Our own Madame Perkins is again the victim of another cry to oust her as Secretary of Labor and Commerce. In all due respect, we suggest that the venerable Madame join a union and insure herself of a position.

The Japanese reported that their recent submarine raid on the West Coast resulted in many dollars worth of damage. If we may take the words of our own government as correct as to the destruction caused, the Japs are either attempting to fool their people or impress them that the United States is undergoing a period of inflation.

Joe Di Maggio has been recently so disturbed by children seeking his autograph at all hours of the day that the management of the apartment in which he lives in New York has been throwing autograph parties. Joe puts his name on the dotted line and the management of the apartment furnishes ice cream to the kids.

Together with England's Magna Charta, the original copies of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence have been stowed far away from Washington out of harm's reach. It is certainly significant that in this crisis the individual liberties of men like these two documents, which represent democracy in the United States and Great Britain, should be put away.

Rumor has it that the Republicans may nominate General Douglas MacArthur for the presidency in the election of 1944. We suspect that if the GOP leaders make this choice, it will be because of the General's fine campaign in the Philippines.

Dear Diary

by Henry Sexton

Monday, Feb. 9:

Boarding School goes on Eastern-War Time with the rest of the nation. None were late for breakfast, though many came into the dining-room bleary-eyed, from the loss of that hour of beauty-sleep.

The Referee calls personal foul on Bob "Red" Kenlan, but Kenlan replies, "Yes, but I was on the other side of the court." Nevertheless, Red made several points in the game.

Tuesday, Feb. 10:

Lin Britten leaves us to go to Tennessee with his parents.

In Ancient History class, lay-investiture was the topic discussed. Mr. Holley asked a student what a layman was, saying also that he himself was one. The student replied, "A layman is a highway robber, one who preys on travelers."

David French informs us that in the last snow storm a St. Bernard dog refused to attend him because Dave was too young.

The Matthews have decided to paint the pictures on the wall, because they find that not even chewing gum will hold the pictures in place when a Conga line is formed in the rooms overhead.

DRAGON SEED

John Day & Co. by Pearl S. Buck

While many books have already been written of the gallant fights waged by the Chinese and of guerrilla warfare deep in the mountains of China, very few have dealt with life in the conquered regions. DRAGON SEED, the new novel by the author of THE GOOD EARTH, does so.

Told as is her custom from the point of view of the simple peasant, Miss Buck's book shows clearly the treatment under which the Japanese conquered peoples must live. It is a tale filled with horror and bloodshed, pillage and destruction, corruption and bribery; however, it also shows the indomitable will for freedom hid in the heart of the oppressed.

The setting for the story is laid just outside the walls of Nanking, in which place the author lived for a number of years. Here we meet the farmer Ling Tan and his family: his wife, his daughter, and his sons. For years and years and still more years they and their ancestors have lived and died on their own little plot of land, seldom venturing more than twenty miles away. If they dig a hole for a well or some such purpose, they are very likely to come upon the bones or the earrings of some long dead grandfather, and below him a yet more distant relative. Thus has life begun, existed, and stopped in the same place for many generations, and thus do the present members of the tribe intend to carry on.

But the fates deem otherwise, for soon rumblings of war begin to insinuate themselves into the quiet life of the family. Traders tell of little brown men from across the sea who are capturing the country, while reports of enemy action grow more and more common until finally the great silver birds begin gliding overhead. Ling Tan and the others are at first merely intrigued by these, but soon the beautiful objects start to drop bombs which kindle great fires and destroy large buildings. One even swoops low enough to knock the head from a curious bystander. From that time, the farmers fear the approach of the silver creatures and hide at their approach.

It soon becomes evident that the invader will come to Nanking, so two of the sons flee the territory and go to the mountains, leaving Ling Tan with only his wife and youngest son, a lad of about sixteen. Surely there could be no harm in that, for what cause for complaint could the enemy have against a group of simple peasants?

But the advance of the enemy was evil. As the men of the village had planned, a delegation of farmers was sent out to meet the foe, bearing gifts of tea and rice. But all the new masters wished for was wine and women. Soon the place was a madhouse of screams and excitement, with cries ringing out on all sides and drunken soldiers murdering indiscriminately for the sheer joy of killing. The wine supplies of the village, used usually only on feast days and then merely in small quantities, were quickly gulped down, and small groups raided houses for more. Where none was found, the bolder burned the buildings and smashed furniture from sheer malice. Soon the whole district was aglow with the flame.

Nor was the hut of Ling Tan spared. When the rabble found that he had no wine, they beat up the youngest son, who thereupon ran off to the mountains, raised a band of companions, and became the most feared robber chieftain in all of China.

However, the people do not submit quietly to the wrongs done them, for soon organized bands of guerrilla warriors and carefully planned traps brought opposition to the enemy into the land. Secret radio stations are set up, and loyal men are insinuated into positions of importance in the govern-

Varsity Basketball Team Nosed Out in Several Close Games

Newman Quintet Defeats Maroon In Extra Periods

Prep Rallies in First Overtime Only to Lose, 39-37, in Second; Cohen Stars

The Prep court squad journeyed to Lakewood to play the most exciting game and suffer the most heart-rending defeat of the season on the floor of the Newman School. Battling into two overtime periods, the Newman five finally won out over an equally hard-fighting Prep team by a score of 39 to 37.

Harry Cohen led the Prep attack in the first half sinking the first score of the game shortly after the opening whistle blew. Danny Williams then followed up with a single foul shot, but Newman immediately came back as Bill Whelan dropped the ball through the hoop from under the basket. Bob Waguespack followed him with a long set shot as the period ended.

In the second period Harry Cohen and George Mederer each sank two baskets while Phil Ruegger shot one foul. Newman was unable to match this, shooting only one goal and two fouls, and the half ended 10-9 in Prep's favor.

The second half saw the score change hands several times. Danny Williams sparked the Prep drive with three baskets while Bobby Schweitzer, Harry Cohen and Phil Ruegger each had two apiece. Al Perry dominated the Newman side of the picture, scoring four baskets. He was closely followed by Kelly, who made three. As the time ran out in the fourth period, the score stood at 33-33, and the overtime period was played.

Newman immediately sank two baskets. But Prep was not stopped. Phil Ruegger let go from the center of the floor and the ball sailed neatly through the hoop. Bob Schweitzer raced up the center and sank the basket to tie the score. A few seconds later the first overtime ended. Newman finally won the game in the sudden death extra period as Al Perry sank a pair of foul shots, ending the game, 39 to 37 in the home team's favor.

CARTERET'S FIRST-HALF ATTACK PROVES INSURMOUNTABLE FOR MAROON QUINTET

A tremendous first-half attack proved too much for Rutgers Prep's basketball team despite the fact that it rallied in the second half to outscore the winning Carteret five, victors, 33 to 18, on their home court.

Carteret, unbeaten in nine successive starts and winners over such court powers as Newark Academy, jumped off to a 10-2 lead in the first period and continued the rampage to stay ahead at the half, 22 to 2.

Jim Broas started the proceedings for the Red five with a brace of field goals; Dowd contributed another; Broas scored again; and Hall and Dowd added two-pointers. Bobby Schweitzer sank a long shot for Prep as the period ended. A second Carteret five of equal ability amassed ten more points in the second period as Prep was held scoreless. Hayworth bagged a quartet of field goals and Saupé added another to account for the Carteret total.

Prep started the second half with renewed vigor and proved more than a match for the same teams which had trounced them in the first period. George Mederer tallied on a field goal from underneath the basket, but Broas countered with a similar shot. Bobby Schweitzer made another short two-pointer and Mederer continued with a brace more of doubledeckers from close in. Villanera closed the period for Carteret with a field goal. Prep's attack continued to function in the final quarter as Captain Gus Gustafson registered three successive field goals after Haywood and the Dowd brothers had scored for Carteret. Marion scored the only foul shot point of the game and Phil Ruegger tossed one in from the side for Prep to end the game, Carteret the winners, 33 to 18.

Carteret played with the finesse of an experienced and undefeated team. The winning Reds used their height to tremendous advantage, fielding two teams on which no man was less than six feet tall. Both teams were off at the foul line, each missing more than a half dozen charity tosses. Carteret used their superior height to good advantage under the basket, however, as their attack was paced by Haywood, Broas, and J. Dowd with ten, eight, and six points respectively. Prep's attack was led by Captain Gustafson and George Mederer, each with six points.

Lawrenceville's Cagers Defeat Prep, 55 to 26

The Prep courtsters suffered a crushing defeat at the hands of a taller Lawrenceville five. Lawrenceville was sparked by the trio of Davis, Larson, and Berlin, who accounted for most of the team's scoring.

The game got off to a fast start when Dave Berlin took the ball from the starting jump and neatly flipped it through the hoop. Dan Williams soon retaliated by sinking a shot from under the basket, but as the period closed Lawrenceville took an edge over the Prep five.

In the second quarter, Prep showed signs of coming as George Mederer dropped a pivot shot. Bill Larson then took possession of the court and swished in two successive shots. He was followed by Davis and Berlin, who had a field day while the Lawrenceville score rose. The half ended with the score standing 34-16 in the home team's favor.

The third quarter continued in much the same fashion, Bill Larson and Fred Jackson keeping up a constant barrage. For Prep Gus Gustafson and Bobby Schweitzer stood out. In the fourth period Sandy McDougal and Ed Davis kept the ball flying for the Lawrenceville squad. Al Evans sank the final basket for Prep as the last whistle blew, the score standing 55 to 26.

Hun Beats Prep On Second Half Offensive, 26-22

The Prep basketball squad experienced another one of those heart-breakers so frequent this season as they bowed to the Hun School at the Prep Gym by the close score of 26-22.

The first period started slowly, neither team being able to hit the basket. Finally, however, Mather started things moving by dropping a set shot from mid-court. Phil Ruegger then scored from the side of the court, but Hun took the lead before the period ended as Walker scored on a single foul shot.

The second period saw Phil Ruegger dominate the floor for Prep as he chalked up two successive goals and followed with two foul shots. Walker and O'Grady each tallied for Hun, and just before the half, Erickson swished the ball through the hoop and added a single foul shot to make the score 10-9 for Hun.

George Mederer started the second half by looping a goal from under the basket. O'Grady then sank two fouls and a goal for Hun, but Prep immediately came back when Bob Schweitzer and Gus Gustafson scored in quick order. Walker then broke away for a short shot as the third period ended.

The fourth quarter saw Harry Cohen and Erickson in the spotlight for their respective teams. During the whole game, the lead had wavered back and forth, and in the closing minutes Erickson and Perna ran the score to 26 for Hun, but as a consolation Bob Schweitzer's last shot, in the air as the closing whistle blew, swished through the net to bring the Prep score to 22.

Newark Rallies to Beat Prep Quintet, 32-18

Visiting Red and Black Five Wins on Late Offensive; Williams High for Prep

On January 17th the powerful Newark Academy basketball team traveled down from Essex county to play the luckless Rutgers Prep team in a return game at the Prep gymnasium. The Prepsters, fighting to break a seven-game streak, were downed by the highly favored Newark team 32 to 18. In the game played earlier in the season, the Newarkers triumphed 52-27.

The Prep courtsters held the Academy team pretty well in check during the first two periods, but were forced to yield before the unrelenting attack of the Newark combine in the second half. The high scoring visitors were able to find the range from the court only ten times, while the Rutgers Prep courtsters netted seven field goals. The game was really settled along the foul line as the Newark team netted 12 out of 23 conversions while the Prep boys were making four out of fourteen.

Both teams got off to a very slow start, but the Essex county quintet gained a 6-3 edge in the first quarter. The second quarter showed both teams netting four points, and the half ended with Newark Academy leading 10-7. When the third quarter began, the more experienced Newark team began to dent the tight Prep defense. When the whistle blew ending the third quarter, the visiting team was leading 19-12. The last period saw the Newark hoops increase their margin with a thirteen point drive while the local five netted three field goals.

A hard blow to the Prep quintet was the loss of their captain, George Mederer, in the second half on personal fouls. Gulla and Sears were the leading forces in the Newark Academy attack, scoring 11 and 9 points respectively. Meanwhile Danny Williams and Bob Schweitzer led the scoring for the Rutgers Prep combine with 9 and 4 points respectively.

Morristown Five Tops Prep Lead To Win 41 to 24

Unable to hold a good lead which it compiled in the first quarter, the Rutgers Prep cage team failed in its attempt to capture its second court victory of the season, losing to Morristown School, 41 to 24, at the Prep Gymnasium.

The game started evenly as Mundrane opened the scoring with a field goal for Morristown. Bobby Schweitzer countered with a two-pointer for Prep, but Lawry's field goal again sent the visiting Maroon team into the lead. Dick Farkas of Prep then netted five successive points and Tommy Bishop added a field goal. Drake closed the period's scoring with a foul shot to cut Prep's lead, 9 to 5. The Prepsters continued to score in the second quarter as Danny Williams and Harry Cohen sank doubledeckers to extend the Maroon's margin to eight points. Traverser scored a foul shot and a field goal, Meehan made good two fouls. Main sank a field goal. Meehan added another foul shot, and Regan tossed a doubledecker to put Morristown in the van, 15 to 13, at halftime.

and Lawry added a foul. Bobby Schweitzer broke the string momentarily with a field goal, but the Morristown onslaught continued as Regan, Meehan, and Lawry added two-pointers. George Mederer sank a foul shot for Prep and Lawry and Harry Cohen exchanged field goals as the period ended, Morristown leading, 30 to 18. Prep tried vainly to get started again in the final quarter as Williams, Cohen and Schweitzer tallied on field goals, but Morristown continued scoring, Pangborn contributing five points. The game ended with Morristown again rallying, 41 to 24.

Morristown showed a well-balanced offensive with Lawry, Regan, and Meehan all contributing more than a half dozen points. Bobby Schweitzer and Harry Cohen were high for Prep, scoring six points apiece.

potions to rustic villagers. Since Miss George's voice was rather weak, she was eclipsed by Mr. Baccaloni's strong bass. Franco Perulli was a little off key; nevertheless his aria was striking. Miss Elizabeth Wysor followed in the aria Fides from Meyerbeer's Opera "The Prophet". It is a mother's cry against the perfidy of her son in casting her into prison as insane.

The marriage scene from Donizetti's "Don Pasquale" was next on the programme. As usual Baccaloni was the leading actor, but Ivan Petroff as Dr. Malatesta gave a memorable performance. Don Pasquale is duped into marriage with Norina, but after signing over some of his property to Norina he finds her not as meek as she pretended.

After intermission the tavern scene from Act II of Giuseppe Verdi's "Falstaff" was presented. Baccaloni's costume again showed his versatility.

SCHOOL BUILDING CLEAN-UP

Mr. Shepard plans to build a room on the third floor where classes may be held.

The cellar, where manual training was formerly given, is now being treated to rehabilitation. The rotten wood floor has been replaced by one of modern tile. The metal ceiling has been ripped out to make room for a new and higher one. Room one, as it will be called, is to have blackboards on all four sides with lights set flush with the ceiling. When finished, this room will be the best and the most modern in the school.

it. This is so because the school collects a certain amount of money for each advertisement, the sum depending upon the size of the advertisement. However, Mr. Matthews informs us that this department, so vital to the success of the publication, is failing miserably in its work. This failure is due in large part to a lack of cooperation among the students. Hence, all who are interested in the success of YE DIAL, but who do not wish to enter the photography division, will be welcomed as ad-gatherers.

Mark McChesney reports that the faculty write-ups are now being prepared. These are short sketches containing the college or colleges attended by the teacher, the various degrees he has received, and a brief description of his personality.

YE DIAL has always devoted considerable space to the field of sports. A group picture of each team, plus a writeup of its activity is always featured. This year's football material has been prepared by Dick Farkas under Mr. Rudy's supervision.

Other articles will be writeups of each of the lower classes as well as reports on the Alpha, Beta, Gamma, and Delta houses. Also there will be group pictures of the day boys, the boarders, the ARGO staff, and the YE DIAL board.
