EXAMINATION HINTS.

- Before the exam:
1. Start your review now.
  2. Review a little each day in every subject.
  3. Review the way you will be tested, that is, WRITE your exam review, since most exams are written exams.
  4. Gather all the equipment you will need for writing the exam.
- During the exam:
5. Scan the whole exam and plan your attack upon it.
  6. Answer the easiest questions first.
  7. Be as brief and factual as possible.
  8. Work quietly and comfortably, thinking before you write.
  9. Relax occasionally.
  10. Save the last ten minutes to check your paper.
- After the exam:
11. Forget it! Continue your review for the next exam.

HAVE A GOOD VACATION AND BETTER LUCK NEXT YEAR.

HATS OFF

With the issuing of this final ARGO, we, of the staff, are able to look back over a year of progress, not only for the paper, but for the school as well. Our teams had a good year, as did all other extra curricular activities.

As this is the final editorial I would like to take the opportunity to bring to light the accomplishments of the various workers on THE ARGO.

Assistant Editor, Chuck Jackson was probably the most outstanding case of a person fitting into a pattern of good work. There wasn't a moment all year that Chuck was not around to help out in various ways to produce this sheet, and it is doubtful whether the paper would have been the success it was without him.

Feature Editor, Frank Powell, was another worker who was indispensable. His column, THE SPOTLIGHT, was a welcome addition to every issue.

Dick Connolly, our Art Editor, was responsible for many of the fine drawings, headlines, and our new heading. He did a most creditable job.

Although a Freshman Bernard Rineberg was a great asset as the Sports Editor. He was always there at meetings and other odd times to help out, and for that alone he should be praised.

Gene Ginsberg and Gil Wiseman both turned in excellent pictures, that I am sure were one of the most popular parts of the paper.

Freshmen, James Lamont, Charles Tucker, and Bill Cramer, started off their journalistic careers at the beginning of the year, and if past performances are any indication they should be all great assets to future Prep publications.

After mid-terms Gerry Shinn and Stu Jay came out for THE ARGO, and the few articles that they handed in were always top-notch.

Handling all social events were Tom Murray, Angelis Alexandris, and Mason Martens. Tom and Angie could always be called on to furnish data on school functions, while Mason handed in timely articles on concerts, etc.

Vince Marascio and John Miske were two of the more quiet members of the staff, but that did not detract from their effectiveness. Vince helped with pictures, while John helped edit sports articles.

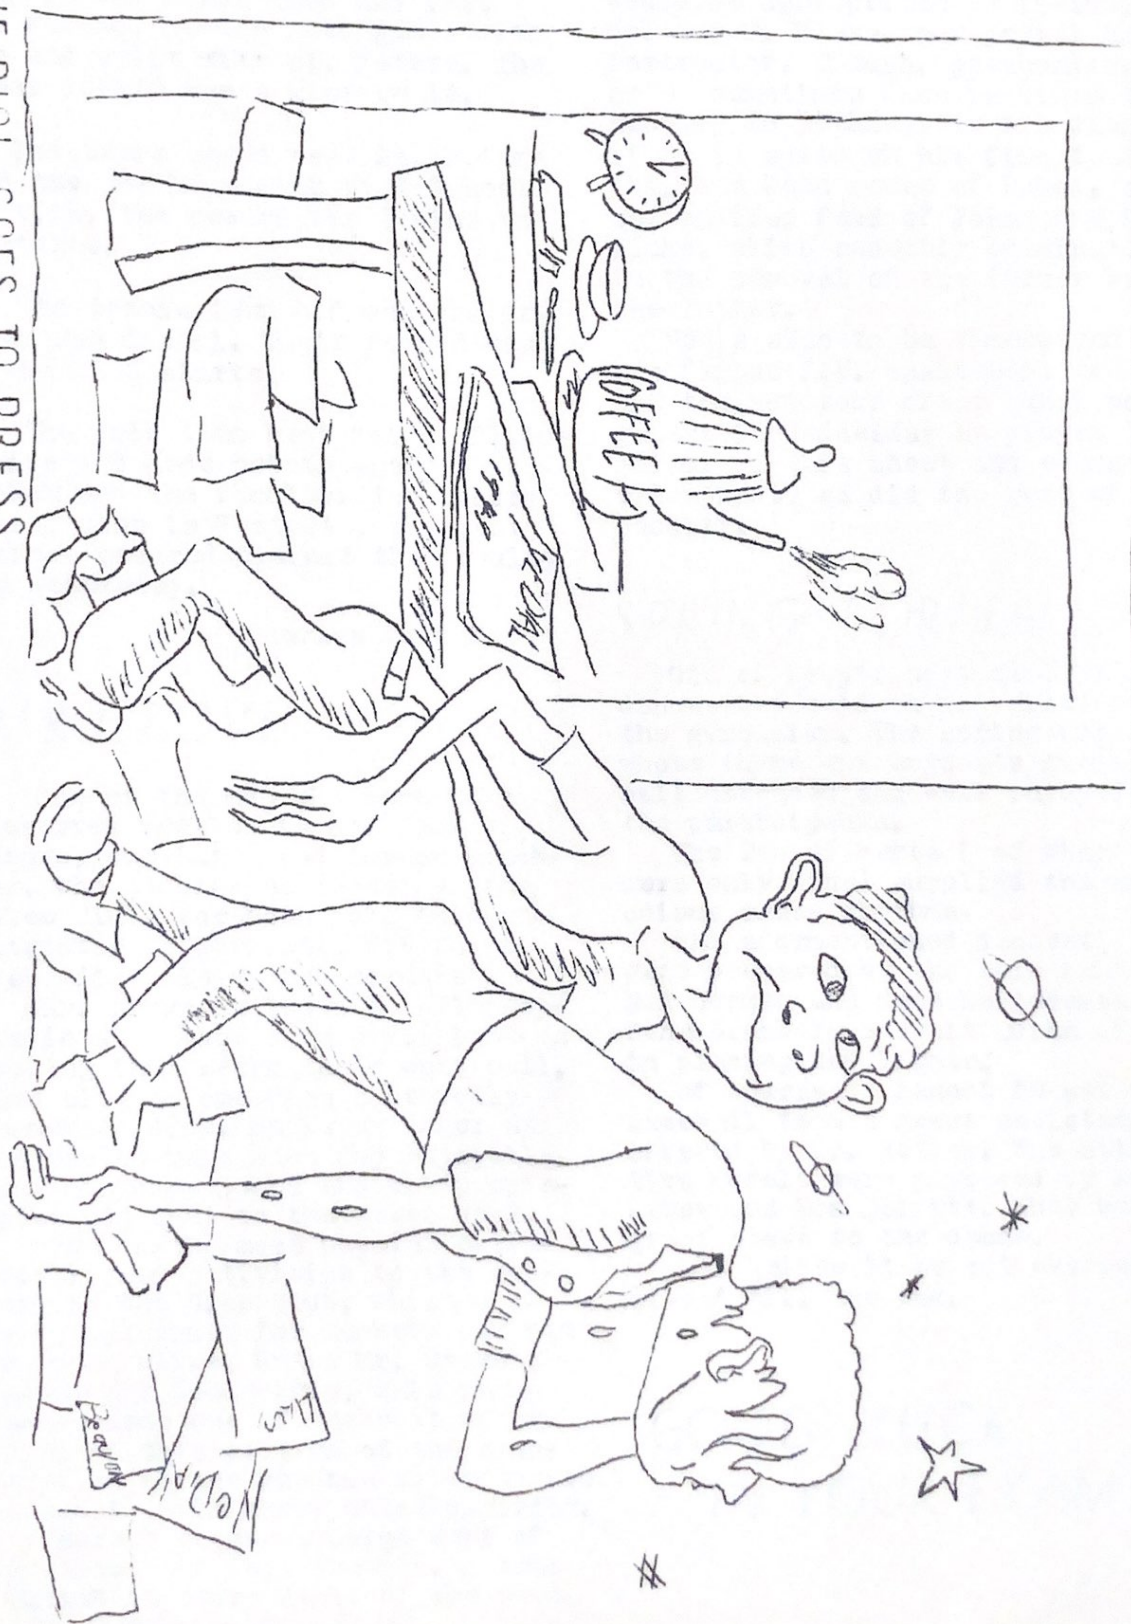

Three ARGO members who were valuable in the early part of the year were: Jack Anderson, Neil MacFarlan and James Rothschild. Although commitments forced them to abandon the paper we look forward to their assistance next year.

That about takes care of everyone connected with THE ARGO. All there is left to say is thanks for a fine year.

SPORTS SUMMARY

The baseball team beat Highland Park in the first game and lost the second. We won both games with Hun and split with St. Peters. The final record was 4 wins in 14.

The track squad beat St. Peters and the New Brunswick High School J. V.'s. The record was 3 wins in 5 starts.

The tennis team had one victory over Hun School. Their record was 1 win in 6 starts.

The golf team beat Scotch Plains twice and made points against Metuchen and the faculty. The record was 2 wins in 7 starts. The last defeat occurred against the faculty on Wednesday.

Charles Tucker

MR. GROVE

One of the men who certainly deserves mention is Mr. Jack B. Grove, our Latin and German teacher, who doubles as leader of the Glee Club. For both jobs this instructor is perfectly fit for he is a fine singer and organist.

Mr. Grove is known to all people in his classes as a man bent on making them learn their work well, and also as one with a strictly humorous side. He is as eager as anyone to make each day enjoyable, and his many jokes and witty episodes add zest to the class work.

One of the most popular extracurricular activities in the school is the Glee Club, which provides pleasure for members and non members alike. Under Mr. Grove's excellent leadership, this group has become one of the best of its kind in this section of the country, as anyone who has attended its concerts will agree wholeheartedly.

Surely we owe a large debt of gratitude to this teacher, a true artist in every sense of the word.

James Lamont

MR. BLAKE

In this issue, we thought it would be appropriate to include Mr. Guy F. Blake, our jovial Math instructor. Though, personally, we have sometimes been inclined to succumb to lethargy in his classes, it is in spite of his fine teaching, and keen sense of humor, and the endless feud of Johnson V.S. Blake, which recently culminated in the removal of the former by the latter.

He is also to be remembered for his famous J.V. basketball teams, and the numerous after lunch pool games. On Wednesday he played the Editor of this sheet and emerged triumphant, as did the rest of the faculty.

SPRING FORMAL

One of Prop's most successful dances was held on May 21st. in the gymnasium. The spring formal, whose theme was anyone's guess was well attended and well enjoyed by the participants.

The Ten Gilberts ( of whom there were only nine) supplied the melodious dance rhythms.

The aforementioned decorations were prepared by the able hands of Red Gorman and Hans DeBlecourt. Gene Ginsberg and Walt Quinn aided in placing the lights.

Of course we cannot forget the baseball team's great assistance, offered by Mr. Holley. The attractive murals were prepared by Joe Lebow and Don Moffitt. They were a great asset to the dance.

And believe it or not everyone stayed till the end.

GOOD LUCK
