October Honor Roll Has Total of 22 Students

The first month's honor roll was announced to the student body of the Rutgers Preparatory School on October 27 by Mr. Shepard, the headmaster. The list of twenty-two boys is one of the largest opening month honor rolls that we have ever had at Rutgers Prep. Of this number, thirteen were seniors, one was a junior, six were sophomores, and two were freshmen.

A student must get an average of a certifying grade of seventy-five or better in each of his subjects. Those boys who get an average of eighty or better but fail to get a certifying grade in one subject are given honorable mention on the honor roll.

Mac Wells Leads School

Leading the school's honor scholars are four boys with averages better than ninety. The leader of the first honor roll of the year is John McNeill Wells, son of Mrs. Berlyn Wells of New Brunswick, New Jersey. Mac, as he is called by his numerous friends, is a sophomore, who has had a fine record throughout his stay at Rutgers Preparatory School. He never completed his freshman year because illness forced him to leave in the middle of the se-

Parents' Day Great Success

A great number of parents of both boarding and day students attended the Parents Day celebration and watched Rutgers Prep play an exciting and interesting game with the George School. Even though the Prepsters lost 13-6, everyone admitted that the game was well played and thrilling from start to finish.

Invitations having been sent to all parents beforehand, a fine turnout of parents came to inspect the dormitories, watch the football game, and meet the faculty. After the game, buffet lunch was served in the dining hall with the students assisting in the serving of the guests. Mrs. Rudy and Mrs. Matthews presided at the coffee urns. The parents had ample opportunity to talk with Mr. Shepard and members of the faculty.

Eighty Guests Attend

Mr. Shepard was very pleased that so many parents were interested enough to come and inspect the school. With over eighty guests besides students attending, this Parents Day exceeded last year's number and this year's expectations. Having a larger year's school last year, Rutgers Prep had a smaller group on the first Parents Day. Those guests present are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Edmund G. Bartlett; Rev. and Mrs. John W. Beardslee, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Beaudette; Mr. E. K. Bispham, Miss Barbara Bispham; Dr. and Mrs. Francis M. Clarke; Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Cohen; Marvin Cohen; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Conhagen; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Alfred Conhagen Jr.; Mr. Joseph W. Cramer, Wil-Cramer; Mr. Joseph DeAngelis, Iam Cramer; Mrs. Joseph DeAngelis, Iam Cramer; Mr. and Mrs. Miss Lucille DeAngelis; Mr. and Mrs.

Theatre Club Sees Evans Production of "Macbeth"

The Theater Club opened its season last Friday with a trip to see "Macbeth," produced by Maurice Evans, directed by Margaret Webster, and starring producer Maurice Evans and Miss Judith Anderson in the leading roles.

Thirteen students, six of whom were day boys and seven boarding students, attended the performance. Day boys Fred Lambert, Rex Miller, Andy Cook, Dave Beardslee, Dave French, and Bob Nafey, came to New York by train and met the boarding boys in the lobby of the National Theater.

The boarding group, Mark McChesney, Lew Irmisch, Henry Sexton, Leonard Waterman, Max Raab, and James Lategano, together with Mr. Hunter, went in the school station wagon after supper at the "Traps."

Messrs. Brewer, McClave Visit Rutgers Prep

During the last week Mr. Brewer, who has retired as English teacher and faculty adviser to our school yearbook, "Ye Dial," and Mr. McClave, last year's school swimming coach, paid visits to the Prep School dormitory.

Mr. Brewer, since he retired a year ago, has been living in Gilbertsville, New York, and keeping up his interest in the theater. He has managed to keep in touch with school affairs by periodic visits to the school dormitory and by an exchange of letters with students and faculty.

Mr. McClave, while attending Rutgers University, acted as officer of the day, coach of swimming, and an all around tutor for the students at the "Traps" during the last three years. He was also very active in the extra-curricular program of the school, attending

DOROTHY MAYNOR, NEGRO SOPRANO, OPENS RUTGERS CONCERT SERIES GIVING INSPIRING PERFORMANCE

On the evening of October 29, Miss Dorothy Maynor appeared as the artist on the first program of the annual Rutgers Concert Series. Miss Maynor rendered a well-varied program containing both classic airs and a number of Negro spirituals.

This noted Negro soprano was born in Hampton, Virginia, the daughter of a Methodist minister, and, at the age of fourteen entered the world famous Hampton Institute, whose excellent choir has brought it much fame. Later, in 1929, she toured Europe with this same group. After graduating from the Institute, she attended the Westminster Choir School with the intention of finally becoming a teacher of music, but at the urging of friends took up concert singing instead.

However, it was not until her discovery by Serge Koussevitzky of the Boston Symphony Orchestra that she realized her present well-deserved fame. At her first appearance in New York in 1939 the hard-boiled city critics went wild over her voice, and stood and cheered for twenty minutes.

In addition to a fine voice, Miss Maynard has become very well versed in the technique and fine points of singing, which ability adds smoothness and skill to a natural talent. And it appears that she has not as yet realized all of her possibilities, for her range seems to be terrific.

The first part of her program dealt exclusively in the works of the famous eighteenth century composer, Handel, and consisted of "V'doro pupille" from Julius Caesar, containing Cleopatra's confession of love for Caesar from the second act of the opera, and "O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me" from Semele.

Student Council Announces First Dance of Year

Headmaster Shepard Makes Offer of Accommodations for Guests at Residence

PRINCETONIANS TO PLAY

Dance Committee and Faculty Chaperones Listed by President Farkas

On December 5 Rutgers Preparatory School will hold the first dance of the year. This promises to be one of the big events of the school social season, and will, as in other years, provide a good time for all attending. The fete will take place in the Prep School gymnasium.

The dance committee consists of nine well chosen members: Ray Ries, Fred Howell, Bob Schweitzer, Mac Wells, George Ziegler, James Lategano, George Mederer, Bill Pfaff, and Ted Minde. The committee is being aided by the Student Association and faculty adviser, Mr. Benjamin Matthews, who did a splendid job last year in the same capacity. The treasurer of the Student Association, David Beardslee, will handle all money matters concerning the dance.

The dance is to be a semi-formal affair and tends toward the conservative side. The young ladies attending the affair will come in formal attire, and the boys are requested to wear tuxedos, or dark suits and white shirts. Boys are especially requested not to wear loud sport clothes.

The chaperons for the dance will be Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Shepard Jr., Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Rudy, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Matthews, Mrs. G. C. Andrews, and Mr. A. Z. Holley.

The girls invited by the boarding boys will arrive after luncheon on Friday, December 5. In the evening, the boys and girls will have dinner in the school dining room. The dance will begin promptly at nine o'clock, and it will end at one o'clock. Girls staying overnight will be accommodated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Shepard; however, if there is a large number of guests, they will spend the night in the Alpha House. The girls will leave Saturday morning after breakfast.

There will be no study period on Saturday morning. This arrangement has been made so that the boys may escort their guests to the station. The arrangement also makes it possible for some of the boys to aid in the cleaning of the gymnasium.

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS

As was the case last year, the Thanksgiving holiday of Rutgers Prep will coincide with that of the state of New Jersey. The short four-day recess will commence today at 1:15; school will reconvene next Monday at 8:30. According to Mr. Shepard, all boarding boys will be expected to attend dinner at the Traps at 6:30 Sunday.

WHY WE PRINT THE ARGO

It is necessary for any paper, big or small, to adopt a definite policy upon which it can base its aims. THE ARGO has three definite aims, and its policy is built around these: first, to give the students interesting and significant news; second, to serve as a good advertisement for the Rutgers Preparatory School; and third, to offer valuable training to those students who wish to pursue a career in which they will be benefited by their writing or business experience on THE ARGO.

The prime purpose of THE ARGO, as of any other paper, is to bring to its readers news which they could not obtain in full through any other source. Besides serving the student body, THE ARGO is widely read by many Alumni who depend on it as their only means of getting school news. THE ARGO, of course, features important school news plus other interesting topics such as editorials, columns, book reviews and feature articles.

Since THE ARGO is widely distributed to other schools, the homes of students and leading business houses of the city, it is necessary for it to make a good impression. THE ARGO maintains an exchange with many public and private school newspapers throughout the United States. Every year it is entered with newspapers of schools the size of Rutgers Prep at various press conferences, and, we are happy to say, last year it carried off a medal at the Columbia Scholastic Press Conference.

Briefly the policy of THE ARGO has been outlined. The editors hope it fully complies with the conception which the student has of what a school paper should be like. Nonetheless the staff is always happy to receive suggestions pertaining to the improvement of the paper.

WE AND THE WAR

"Why should we worry about the war? It doesn't affect us at all—we don't have to fight in the trenches, we are not stood up before firing squads!" That is what is heard on all sides.

Actually, however, it does touch us in many ways. Of course, there is the draft. When we reach the age of twenty-one, the government will draft us into the army for a time. This is one way in which the European conflict comes home to us. It takes a year and a half off our lives.

Also, salaries change during wartime. Some of us will become rich, perhaps, and some will be worse off as a result of the conflict. Such men as ministers and teachers will find their salaries dropping, while others, such as skilled mechanics and machinists, will be receiving high wages from national defense orders. Thus the present wage system will be upset.

Again, there is an increasing scarcity of finished products. There are fewer radios and automobiles on the market, and those there are, are considerably more expensive. Living costs have risen also, and some common foods such as eggs have almost become luxuries. Nor have we as yet reached the peak of this inflation.

Even our outlook on the future is different. A few years ago a boy could expect to graduate from school, find a job, marry, raise a family, and look forward to a pleasant old age. Now it is impossible to foretell the events to come even a week from now. For this reason, people are living only in the present, and hesitate to make plans.

Therefore, although we are not as yet involved in a shooting war, the whole pattern of life in America has changed, and we are vitally affected by the events of the day.

NEWS and VIEWS

By Bob Beaudette

Secretary Frank Knox of the Naval Department has announced that the government will no longer inform the public of the torpedoing of American merchant ships by Axis submarines. Perhaps the government has run out of synonyms for "piracy".

William F. O'Dwyer has no one to blame for his defeat in the New York City mayoralty contest but his own party. The reason he lost was that there were Tammany voters against him.

In one of her numerous speeches, Mrs. Roosevelt, the traveling salesman for her husband, said that she thought that there might not be any nations after the war is over. There are a good many people in the United States today who wish that our government was moving toward anarchy instead of the way it is.

A Russian military mission is being given careful attention by our Lend-Lease administrators. In the opinion of this column the matter should be turned over to J. Edgar Hoover and investigated as "Communist Activities in the United States".

War relief societies may paint their gruesome pictures of suffering in Europe, but there are no reports which are more terrible than those emanating from the European capitals themselves. Vichy has just ordered that in the future all athletic contests shall be shortened. The reason given was that French athletes have not the stamina to undergo contests because of food rationing.

In a recent talk to labor delegates from thirty-three nations, President Roosevelt said that the American people have made an unlimited commitment that the world shall be free. Judging from his policy though, the President is being partial. He seems to be more interested in the freedom of the British than in our own.

THE BOOKWORM

THE HILLS BEYOND

By Thomas Wolfe
Harpers & Brothers

When Thomas Wolfe died in 1938 he left behind him more than a million words of unpublished manuscript, and from this have already been taken "The Web and the Rock" and, more recently, "You Can't Go Home Again." The remainder was muddled over and the pick of the short stories, plus the completed chapters of an unfinished novel, were taken. These have been incorporated in "The Hills Beyond" by Wolfe's literary executor, Edward C. Aswell.

Thomas Wolfe, although he led an uneventful and rather tragic life, was nevertheless a very interesting character. He was brought up in the South, where he laid the scenes for his novels, and later went to Harvard, where he trained himself as a dramatist. However, this was not to be, and upon the publication of his first book, "Look Homeward Angel," he decided to take novel writing as a career. He had quite a queer and unusual philosophy for his books, but one which is obviously the right one. He did not believe that life was entirely good, as some would have it, nor does he feel that all nature is wicked and that the human race is entirely depraved. He feels that there are many bad and desperately sordid qualities about everything, but that even the worst aspects of life have their beautiful side. The tramp in the street leads a lost child home. The generous and kindly pastor runs away with a burlesque queen. All these have their place in human life he says.

As has been mentioned, Wolfe found his characters and settings among his own acquaintances and in his home town scenes. Every one in "Look Homeward Angel" can be easily identified by those in his birthplace. And when his book became the best-seller that it did, and when it was hailed by critics as The Great American Novel, it created much more furor than he had ever imagined that it would. He even found many people holding grudges against him for his too-true characterizations of them. The town was so excited that he decided to leave, and he stayed away for seven long years. In the end he thought that he would try to go back, and in "The Prodigal Son," the story of his return, his emotions are very well portrayed. This story even gives the reader a touch of home sickness.

All through Wolfe's novels he makes use at different times of the same characters. Eugene Gant, for instance, is met in at least three of his books, and George Webber likewise. Both of these live in the pages of "The Hills Beyond," in more than one story. In view of this constant recurrence, the theory that all Wolfe's works were part of one large novel (something like the method Proust, the French novelist, employed) has been advanced. It is a thought worthy of consideration.

The main feature of "The Hills Beyond" is the novel-fragment bearing the same name. Starting out with an entirely new set of characters, the story traces the lives of a whole family from their beginnings as crude mountaineers to their producing a member of the United States Senate. It deals with a family named Joyner, who first make their appearance through Bear Joyner, an energetic individual who becomes the governor of a great state through his forwardness and honesty, but who till the end of his days retained a roughness and toughness in his speech

Prep Football Team Closes Season With Montclair, George Games

Prep Gridders Lose Game to Montclair, 32-0

Winning Mounties Capitalize on Breaks to Hand Prep 3rd Defeat of Season

The Rutgers Prep Varsity eleven traveled upstate to Montclair Academy where they were met and turned back by a powerful Montclair combine, 32 to 0. The Prepsters never had it in them from the start as three intercepted passes and two costly fumbles paved the way to defeat.

All went well with the Little Scarlet until the closing minutes of the first quarter, when Bill Ebner plunged over from the four yard line after driving forty-five yards down field. Bill Vogelsang plowed through the line and blocked Ebner's try for the extra point.

Defense Led by Williams

Midway through the second quarter, Prep began to move and received two successive first downs and were on their way to a third when a bad center which traveled nineteen yards downfield was recovered by Frank Jacobs. Montclair took advantage of this and turned it into another tally, and Ebner and Dan Emerson, carrying the ball alternately, moved the pigskin down to the Prep two yard line. Here the Prepsters stiffened and held for two downs, but then Ebner hurried from the one foot line for the score. Emerson kicked the extra point and the half ended 13-0. All through the first half, the Prep offense was led by fiery Danny Williams, who played an inspired game despite the tremendous opposition.

The second half turned into a rout when the Prepsters again fumbled deep in their own territory to give Montclair another six pointer. Immediately upon getting the ball on the kickoff Prep took to the air and after completing one aerial, Al Evans faded back to heaven another. However, this time Percy Hill, Montclair's sturdy tackle, rushed in and partially blocked Evans's pass. Dan Emerson gathered in the pigskin and galloped forty yards for their fourth tally.

Prep's Defense Loses Power

Once again early in the fourth quarter the upstate boys drove deep into our territory, but this time Vogelsang smeared Whitey Dulhagen and then recovered the ball as Dulhagen lost it. Prep's offense bogged down at this point, and they were forced to punt. Montclair took the ball and on three successive passes, Dulhagen to Emerson, advanced 70 yards for the final score of the game. With but three minutes to play Prep started moving. Williams returned the kickoff from his goal line to the twenty yard line. Johnny Linder and Al Evans carried the ball for ten yards. Evans then passed to Williams who raced 15 yards for a first down. Williams then heaved a pass to Linder for a first down within the Montclair thirty yard stripe, as the whistle blew ending the game.

GEORGE SCHOOLS' PASSES OVERCOME

PREP GRIDDERS BY SCORE OF 13-6

The Rutgers Prep Varsity eleven played host to an inspired George School aggregation on the annual Parent's Day game at Neilson Field, and went down to defeat 13-6 as Danny Williams and Bill "Rebel" Wurzbarger starred in the Prep backfield. Brud Bispham did a commendable job on the pivot position as well as scoring Prep's lone tally.

Frank Dudley did most of the ground gaining and turned in a splendid performance of passing as the Pennsylvanians scored on a seventy yard drive in the second quarter and drove eighty yards for their second touchdown in the third.

The Prep score came on the opening of the second half. Al Evans, kicking for the Maroon, booted the ball into the end zone. Brud Bispham streaked down under the kick and recovered for the touchdown before the befuddled George School players realized what was happening. Evans' place kick was blocked and recovered by Danny Williams who failed to cross the goal line for the extra point.

In the concluding moments of the first quarter George School came to life and began to move. Dudley passed to Dick Sinclair, covering thirty yards. Jim Paxton then plowed down to the twenty yard stripe as the quarter ended. The following seven line plays advanced the Pennsylvanians to the one yard line.

It was Dudley all the way for the victory-hungry Georgians. Taking the ball from the thirty yard line on the kickoff following the Prep score, he passed twice to Dick Sinclair for forty-five yards, and then, after slashing off tackle for several substantial gains, he plunged through center to score from the three yard line. Again late in the third frame Coach Sutton's boys moved toward pay dirt. The Prepsters, however, refused to yield on the 22nd yard line and took the ball on downs. Wurzbarger punted to the midfield stripe and George School advanced to the twelve yard line before being stopped. From here Prep, led by Al Evans and Danny Williams, drove steadily onwards to their own forty-five. Wurzbarger then passed to Williams and plowed down to the visitor's forty. Then Williams on a tricky reverse was forced to run out of bounds on the thirty-first yard line as the game ended. Final score Prep 6, George School 13.

Junior Varsity Loses First to Petty 19-0

Suffering a 19-0 defeat at the hands of the visitors, who considerably outweighed them, the Rutgers Prep J.V.'s played host to Peddie's J.V.'s at the stadium field on October 22nd.

The Peddie eleven scored once in each of the first two quarters, and scored again late in the fourth stanza. Peddie's aerial attack proved too much for the Prep J.V.'s, two touchdowns being the result of passes.

A bright spot for Rutgers Prep was the punting of Don Conhagen, which kept the invaders consistently back in their own territory and maintained the spirit and determination of the Prep line. In the third quarter, the Maroon team broke up a sustained Peddie drive on the one foot line and took the ball on the defense for Prep. Bishop ran the ball in fine fashion, but he was handicapped by lack of blocking, even though Minde was doing a good blocking job.

The Peddie backfield quintet of Huelser, Allen, Wurts, and Laird displayed good running and passing abilities. Captain "Doug" Clark was a standout in the Peddie line.

Jay-Vees Held To Deadlock by Pingry Eleven

The Rutgers Prep J.V.'s were held to a scoreless tie on the Rutgers stadium field by a scrappy Pingry eleven as Don Conhagen and Tom Bishop sparked the Prep offense.

Pingry's scoring threat came in the end of the first half when, led by the passing combination of Bob Cuneo to Jim Brader, they drove to the Prep two yard line. Here, however, Pingry faced a sturdy wall of Prep linemen and were unable to score as the half ended.

In the second half the teams fought evenly until the closing minutes of the game. Then Prep took the ball on their own 23 yard line and with two long passes followed by three successive end runs advanced to the Prep one yard. There, with but a fraction of a second to play, the J.V.'s hurried a play and as a result fumbled, ending the threat and the game.

All through the game, the fine defensive work of Bob Beaudette and George Zeigler stood out. The rest of the powerhouse Prep line did creditable work.

Prep Pigskinners Pound Ferocious Newman's Eleven

Havens Blocks Kick, Vogelsang Recovers to Set Up Prep Score, Mederer Tallies

A bolt of lightning and a crash of thunder in the opening minutes of the game at Newman field gave the Rutgers Prep team a well earned 6 to 0 victory over a scrappy Newman School eleven at Newman. The bolt lightning was a blocked kick by Captain Bob Havens and the recovery of the free ball by Bill Vogelsang, Prep's powerhouse guard. The crash of thunder was Johnny Linder's ground shaking plunge from the two yard line across the goal where he fumbled the ball, and alert George Mederer gathered the pigskin into his arms for the touchdown.

Mederer Scores for Prep

Al Evans kicked off to John Tracy to open the game. Tracy returned the kickoff to his own 45-yard line where he was hit hard by Chuck Meissner. Two attempted end runs netted a minus five yards. On the next play George Garces attempted to punt. Bob Havens charged through the Newman line to block the punt, whereupon Vogelsang recovered for Prep. Three successive line plunges by Johnny Linder gave Prep a first down on the Newman fourteen yard line. Gordon Dunham and Danny Williams then took their turns at carrying the pigskin, and moved it down to the six yard line. A Newman offside at that point made it second down and one to go on the Newman two yard line. Johnny Linder then plowed through center over the goal line where he was hit hard by George Kelly. The ball escaped Linder's grasp and sailed into the air and substitute end George Mederer, seeing his grabbed the ball for the score. Al Evans' placekick was blocked when a bad center delayed the kick.

Newman Threat Turned Back

Newman came roaring back in the second quarter when Bill Small blocked Bill Wurzbarger as a result of a poor center by veteran Dick Sexton. With the ball in the possession of the Cardinal and Black on the Prepster's twenty-five yard line, excitement flowed through the spectators. On four line plays the Newman team gained but three yards and Prep took the ball on downs, ending the Newman threat.

The third quarter was even all the way with neither advancing beyond the midfield stripe. However, early in the fourth period, Coach Petke's boys started to move. Inspired by hard running Bill "Rebel" Wurzbarger and Bob "One Eye" Deming the Brunswick boys mowed down to the Newman eight yard line. Here Coach Weber's boys tightened their defense and turned back the invaders. Final score: Prep 6, Newman 0.

MAYNOR SINGS SPIRITUALS

The second part of the program contained a group of compositions by Schubert and Strauss such as the latter's "Ich Swebe," but the best offering of this portion of the program in our opinion was her beautiful rendering of Schubert's "Ave Marie," a request. This haunting piece of sacred music seemed exceedingly beautiful when rendered in such a manner.

After a brief intermission, Miss Maynor sang a number of lovely Negro spirituals, among which were "There's a Man Going About Taking Names" and, perhaps most effective of all, which she rendered without accompaniment. The program concluded with a couple of the lesser known works of Tschakowsky and one by an American composer, Frank La Forge.

Miss Maynor gave the well-known nursery rhyme "The Gingham Dog and the Calico Cat" among her encores, which besides creating an excellent contrast to her former pieces, ended a very pleasurable evening for those who attended.

ing the various athletic games and dances.

On the university swimming team he ranked as one of Rutgers' best divers; he was rated as third in the list of intercollegiate diving champions while on the team. After his visit here Mr. McClave planned to drive out to Los Angeles to work for the Armstrong Cork Company in a position which he has been looking forward to for some time. We know that all who have come in

The dance is being financed by the Student Association, which includes everybody in the school. Since everybody in the school has voluntarily taxed himself to make this dance possible, it is only natural that everyone in the school is expected to be present at the dance. The boarding students have assured the dance committee that it can expect a one-hundred percent patronage; the day school boys are also expected to attend whole heartedly.

Donald Dorne, who was here last year, is now at Duke University. Don was on the Argo staff.

mester. Ever since then Mac has been in and out of school because of sickness, but he nevertheless has maintained a fine scholastic record. For the first month Mac had an average of 92.25. Curiously enough the second highest average in the school belonged to Mac Wells' study hall seat mate, Phil, the president of the sophomore class, finished the first month with an average of 92. The remaining two boys with averages of ninety or better were seniors: David Beardslee and James Gussis. Both of these boys had an average of ninety for the opening month.

and actions which seemed to endear him to the people, for he became so famous that myths began to spread about him, and he almost became a legendary hero.

I for one enjoyed the book very much. I felt that the character really lived. And to end up, I can do no better than to quote the words of the "Atlanta Journal": "What he gives us is the feel, taste, smell, the very heartbeat of American life." D. P. F.
