

The success of the affair would seem to indicate that other dances may be forthcoming.

STANLEY SHEPARD, JR. CARRIES A LIFE-LONG INTEREST IN BOYS INTO NEW JOB AS HEADMASTER OF R.P.S.

Attended Kalbfus, Phillips Exeter
Before Going to Hobart College

FORMERLY A NEW YORK BANKER

As an Undergraduate, His Interest in Sports Was Diversified

Headmaster Stanley Shepard, Jr., was born on August 12, 1903, in Rochester, N.Y. He is the son of Stanley Shepard and Angelena Cobb, graduates of Cornell and Vassar respectively.

Mr. Shepard attended the public schools in Rochester. Then he enrolled in a country day school in Rochester named Kalbfus Preparatory School. In 1919 he entered Phillips-Exeter Academy and graduated in 1923. After completing his preparatory course, he attended Hobart College in Geneva, N.Y., and in 1927 graduated with a B.S. Magna Cum Laude degree.

At Exeter Mr. Shepard took an active part in the publications of the school. He was a member of the highly successful varsity swimming team and still carries a wonderful physique gained from his swimming days.

In college Mr. Shepard took an active part in the Kappa Alpha Society. He was an officer in both his junior and senior years, and was very popular on the campus. He was a member of the varsity lacrosse and tennis teams.

In order to learn the banking business Mr. Shepard procured a position with the Genesee Valley Trust Company in Rochester, and a year later went to The New York Trust Company where he specialized in the personal trust work. In the course of another year Mr. Shepard was made the head of the Personal Trust New Business Department. In 1931 he was appointed head of the Trust Department at the Fortieth Street Office, where he remained until 1936. Then he resigned in order that he might do some post graduate work at Columbia University, where he majored in history and secondary education.

Mr. Shepard has always been very interested in boys and boys' schools. That was shown when he was a counselor at various camps in New York. Mr. Shepard was appointed our headmaster on July 1, 1937.

MAROON MERMEN GIVE HIGH HOPE
AS SWIMMING PRACTICE STARTS

Croonquist, Kellogg, Grieu, Cook,
Eden, Thoennessen Returning

With Paul Croonquist, Vincent Kellogg, Wolf Thoennessen, Ray Green, Paul Cook and Jim Eden back again this year, we are looking forward to a successful swimming season. Last year's boys will be aided and abetted by a score of newcomers, which include Bill Vincent, the best diver Prep has seen in a long while, Lyman Evans, backstroke, and Ed Marvin in the freestyle. The schedule has not yet been announced.

During his work in connection with the banking business, Mr. Shepard married Miss Florence R. Creer of Springfield, Pa., on June 29, 1929. Both Mr. and Mrs. Shepard are members of Phi Beta Kappa. They now have one child, a girl, Susan, who was born on February 6, 1935. They have also a summer residence at West Falmouth, Cape Cod.

I am sure that the whole student body joins us in wishing Mr. Shepard all the good luck and success he deserves in the new task which he has undertaken, and in hoping that he remains with us for a long time to come
