THE FIRST ELECTION.

After the charter of the Students Association had been granted by the Faculty to the students of Rutgers Preparatory School it was necessary to hold an election for the offices of President, Vice President and Secretary of the new Association.

The first election, after all of the due notices had been posted as prescribed by law, was held on Tuesday, April 27, 1909, from 12 noon until 1 p. m. in the school building. The room was modeled somewhat after the election rooms used in our own city elections. In one corner were four enclosed booths with pencils tied inside. On one side and end were placed tables, behind which, with great importance, sat the inspectors of the election. Turner, chief inspector, presided over the ballot box, loaned for this special occasion through the courtesy of City Clerk Mr. James A. Morrison, with as much grace as though he had officiated in that capacity for many years. The ten inspectors, two from each class, attended to serving ballots, and checking the names signed in the registers.

Folensbee, as chairman of the committee appointed by Mr. Scudder to draw up the charter for the new Association, acted as general chief d'affaires. Under his careful supervision and unassuming dignity, characteristic of him, the election was conducted in such a manner as to deserve credit.

Long before the polls were opened the throng had assembled before the entrance. The businesslike attitude of all the election officials and the novelty of the whole affair caused some of the "children" to get a trifle excited. This, however, was immediately reduced and order restored. Several of the voters were compelled to remain at home on account of illness. A few others either lacked the "nerve" or "just did not care to" vote at all; nevertheless, sixty-one votes were cast. No suffragettes appeared on the scene.

While the inspectors were waiting for one o'clock when the polls should close, Low became extravagant, in that he went over to the bakery and bought ten—oh, no, eleven, one for himself—of those deliciously frosted lady fingers and invited the inspectors to share them with him. It was not on account of this fact that he won, however.

A fac simile of the typewritten ballots used in the election is here shown.

OFFICIAL BALLOT
Students Association

The Rutgers Preparatory School
New Brunswick, N. J.

To vote a straight ticket, put an X in the circle
above the party.

If a mistake is made in the marking, return this, and receive a new ballot. No mismarked or erased ballots will be accepted.

O

Party A.
For President,
R. B. Searle.
For Vice President,
F. H. Low.
For Secretary,
B. J. Folensbee.

O

Party B.
For President,
R. B. Searle.
For Vice President,
J. E. Elmendorf.
For Secretary,
B. J. Folensbee.

Although the nominees were the same on both tickets except for the office of Vice President, nevertheless a spirited contest was shown throughout the election and at the final count Party A won by five votes.

The newly elected officers assumed their official duties at the first meeting of the Council of the Students' Association on April 30, 1909.
