November Honor Roll Announced by Mr. Shepard

Headmaster Praises Continued High Standard of Work: Mac Wells Leader

The recent announcement by Head Master Shepard of the students attaining positions on the second honor roll of the year indicated a noticeable improvement in averages of individual students and a continued high standard for the school as a whole.

The second marking period showed an all-round improvement scholastically in the student body. Again there were twenty-two boys on the honor roll: eleven seniors, three juniors, seven sophomores, and one freshman, totaling nearly one-third of the school.

Mac Wells Again Leads School

In announcing the honor roll, Mr. Shepard noted the advance of the four students at the head of the list. Each of them added at least another point to his average. Mac Wells leads the school for the second time with an average of 95, as high a grade as has ever been attained at Rutgers Prep.

Not only those on the honor roll, but the rest of the student body showed a considerable improvement both in

Ye Dial Staff Starts Early on Work For Yearbook

First call has been issued by the faculty advisers for candidates for the school year book, Ye Dial. Two weeks ago Mr. Matthews, who will again serve as faculty adviser to the business board, and Mr. Hunter, acting in the same capacity on the editorial board, asked to meet all boys who were interested in either department. Since response was not particularly heavy, it is hoped that more boys will come out. In the past, Ye Dial has always received an enthusiastic support from the students, and there has generally been at least a score of boys instrumental in its publication. The book is highly regarded around the school and is considered one of the highlights of the year.

Senior Pictures Taken

Because there is a particularly large amount of work to be done, the faculty advisers have indicated their desire to start early. Already senior pictures have been taken and the seniors have been asked to fill out slips giving necessary information for senior write-ups. Assignments for the editorial board will be allotted soon and will be due in mid-March. The business board is likewise expected to start work shortly.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY

Mr. Shepard announces that the Christmas holidays are scheduled to commence on Friday, December 19, at 10:45 in the morning. All boarding boys are to be back at the dormitories by supper time on January 6th, and classes will recommence on the following day at the usual time.

Results of Argo Music Poll Given

Tommy Dorsey Named Favorite Dance Band; "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" Chosen

For the second successive year, Tommy Dorsey's popular dance band was voted favorite of Rutgers Prep. Tommy emerged winner over thirty-eight other bands which were listed by the seventy voting students. On the basis of three points for a first place vote, two for a second, and one for a third, the winner piled up 118 points as against Glenn Miller's 110. Although Glenn was listed on considerably more ballots, Tommy received a plurality of first place votes, and these carried him to victory. Between themselves, the two leaders scored a majority of points. Jimmy Dorsey tallied thirty points to retain his third place position of last year. Harry James scored a minor surprise when he rose to fourth place with twenty-seven points. Artie Shaw placed fifth and Benny Goodman sixth. Sammy Kaye and Vaughn Monroe followed in that order.

The strange fact about the poll was

DANIEL SAIDENBURG'S LITTLE SYMPHONY PERFORMS IN SECOND RUTGERS CONCERT

The second offering of the Rutgers Concert Series for the season 1941-1942, the Saidenburg Little Symphony, Daniel Saidenburg conducting, was presented on December 15, 1941. As is customary, the concert was held in the Rutgers gymnasium.

Daniel Saidenburg, born in America, is the conductor of the Saidenburg Symphonietta, which has been touring the western states: Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and others where it has been received with great enthusiasm. In hundreds of concerts Daniel Saidenburg has given his audiences rich and beautiful selections of music for chamber and string orchestra. Some of his selections are being played in America for the first time.

In 1941 Daniel Saidenburg began in New York his chamber orchestra which was said to be at its debut "an orchestral ensemble of genuine im-

Rutgers Preparatory School Holds First Dance of Year

Theatre Club Sees Two Productions in Excursions to City

As the second and third events of the year, the Theatre Club attended "Best Foot Forward" on November 28, and "Watch on the Rhine" on December 12. Forty students attended the former; twelve, the latter. Twenty-eight of those who saw "Best Foot Forward" went by a bus chartered for the purpose, while the remaining twelve went by train.

Unlike many musical comedies, "Best Foot Forward" has a plot. A prep school admirer of Gale Joy, a screen actress played by Rosemary Lane, sends her an invitation for the senior prom, never expecting an answer. To his surprise she accepts after he has arranged a date with another girl. On this basis were built rollicking scenes accompanied by fine acting and a number of splendid songs. As a sample of the wit, we might cite the remark of the blind date who arrives and asks, "Where's Chuck Green? Let him come and take his medicine."

The embarrassing scenes in which Gale Joy and Helen Schlessinger, Bud's other date, meet face to face, and one in which Bud tries to explain the situation, are exceptionally funny. The songs and dancing of the show were definitely in keeping with the spirit of the play. All had the feeling of juvenile joyfulness and vitality. The songs were all good, but the best three were "Buckle Down, Winsome," "What Do You Think I Am," and "The Three B's."

"Watch On the Rhine" struck a deep and resounding note in its subject matter. Besides being a great dramatic play, it also serves as documentary evidence of the struggle over here of anti-Hitler Germans who are trying to help combat the exile of modern Germany. Paul Lukas, who plays the male lead, gives a wonderful performance of a German who brings his family to America and fights Hitlerism from the outside. His decision that he must return alone to Germany to fight the Nazis forms a brilliant scene of dramatic acting and powerful writing.

Big Turnout Insures Success of Evening; Letters Awarded

Fifty Attending Couples Dance to Music of "Princetonians"

On Friday evening, December 5, the Rutgers Preparatory School held its annual Fall dance at the Prep School gymnasium. The dance had one of the largest attendances of any that has ever been held at the Prep School. There were approximately sixty-five couples in attendance at the dance. They included the students of the school, the faculty, and the lovely ladies who came with them. A number of special friends of the Prep students also came to the dance.

This dance was truly a masterpiece of work by the dance committee and the faculty advisor, Mr. Benjamin A. Matthews. The capable committee consisted of nine boys: Ray Ries, Fred Howell, Bob Schweitzer, Mac Wells, George Zeigler, James Lategano, George Mederer, Bill Pfaff, and Ted Minde. David Beardslee, the treasurer of the school, attended to all money matters concerning the dance. The gym was decorated with furniture from the Prep School dormitories. Different college and high school pennants adorned the walls of the gymnasium, and maroon and white drapes hung over the dance floor. The setting of the dance was cheerful and colorful.

Girls Stay in Alpha House

The dance was a semi-formal affair, the girls coming in formal dress and most of the boys wearing tuxedos. The girls who were invited to the dance by the boarding students arrived Friday afternoon after luncheon. These girls ate dinner with their escorts in the Prep School dining room that evening. Six of the girls stayed overnight in the Alpha house which had been made ready for their use. They made their departure from the boarding school after breakfast Saturday.

The chaperones for the dance were: Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Shepard Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Rudy, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Matthews, Mrs. George C. Andrews, Mr. Andreas Z. Holley, and Mr. Guy F. Blake.

The orchestra which supplied the fine music for the dance was the Princetonians. This is the same aggregation that played at both Prep dances last year. The orchestra began playing at nine o'clock and continued to play until one o'clock when the strains of

WAR COMES TO AMERICA

Last Sunday afternoon there were millions of people in the United States who were resting peacefully at home after a hard week of work. They were sitting back in their easy chairs quietly listening to a concert, relaxing from the cares of the world. Suddenly a newscaster broke in to give a strange report that Hawaii had been attacked, the Philippines had been raided. Eagerly they listened for further details; frantically they turned their dials to other stations unable to believe the first report true. Everywhere they heard the same tragic broadcasts. Finally they realized that the grim reality of war had come to America. The reports continued into the evening; the Japanese had made a treacherous attack on American, British and Dutch possessions in the Pacific.

There was only one answer to this deliberate attack. The next day President Roosevelt asked Congress for a declaration of war. Congress responded quickly, unanimously. Even Senator Wheeler, foremost of the isolationists, asserted that now was the time to give the Japanese hell. Within 48 hours of this first indication of war, there were ugly rumors of attacking forces on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. San Francisco had been blacked out; New York had been warned of an air raid; Boston had heard rumors of an attacking force on the New England coast; patriotic young Americans had swelled enlistments in the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, and Marines tremendously; Japanese had been beaten up by over-enthusiastic Americans; one lady in San Francisco was shot perhaps fatally by an overanxious Home Guardsman when she failed to stop her car during a blackout; commercial planes were grounded. The American people realized that the blitzkrieg with its characteristic swiftness had come.

A bit panicky at first the American populace settled down to get its first real taste of warfare.

YE DIAL

Since the announcement that work on YE DIAL, the school yearbook, would commence soon, there has been a surprising dearth of candidates for position on the publication. This is a bit of a pity, because it is not only a thing of import to the school but also one of great interest to the individual.

YE DIAL is essentially a student institution. It is written for the school, of the school, and by the school. It comprises a written record of a school year which is of interest to everyone attending, especially to the members of the senior class, for whom it will be a memento of Prep days, a memento long cherished. Extra-curricular activities are described, and photographs of participants in each group are included. If a boy was on the varsity football squad, he can again see through the pages of YE DIAL those who were his fellow-players.

Perhaps its greatest benefit, however, is to the one who helps write it. Naturally, it is good experience, for the boy who has done more writing will be that far ahead of the one who has not. Also, there is an indescribable thrill to be gained from seeing one's own work in print, and this glow of satisfaction is well worth the few hours work spent in writing and composition. The nearest comparison to this we can think of is the joy of making a home run with all bases loaded, and even this is less satisfactory, because, whereas a home run is soon over and forgotten, a piece of printing lives on for many years. Therefore, YE DIAL is an institution which should be liberally supported, both for personal motives and for the sake of the school.

It is hoped that the recent appointment of Lou Boudreau as manager of the Cleveland Indians will wipe out the internal strife which has been plaguing the Indians for the past few years. In the past the Cleveland club has been known as 'a good team on paper' because they fold up so easily.

Dame rumor has it that the state of New York will not print any examinations this year to save paper for national defense. Prep students suddenly wish New Jersey were more patriotic.

Interventionists and isolationists alike last week agreed that a declaration of war against Japan could be pushed through Congress without any trouble. It would now seem that Special Envoy Kurosaki's job was not to "score a touchdown" as he said, but to avert one.

THE BOOKWORM

THE TIMELESS LAND

by Eleanor Dark

Here is the accurate and timely story of the beginnings of one of the main outposts of the British Empire, told with vigour and verve by a lady who should know of such things, since she is an Australian herself. While a bit longer than the average novel, it sustains the reader's interest all the way through, and is well worth the reading.

Australia received its first permanent settlement in 1788 when there arrived a shipload of convict-settlers under the governorship of Arthur Phillip. The book deals with their difficulties in forming a settlement, the hardships suffered, and the degradation of the savages who lived there through contact with the white man.

As is fitting in such a vast topic as this covers, it is shown from a great many viewpoints, and traces the lives of a great many people. Perhaps the most important of these is Governor Phillip himself. By the time he took over the command he was getting past his prime, but he continued in his position until ill health completely forced him to give up his office and to retire. But until that time he was continually active, exploring and organizing, ordering and choosing, and meting out rewards and punishments in a very fair, impartial manner. The country was fortunate to have so good a man at its head during those first few years, for without his assistance the colony would have surely perished.

The convicts, naturally, were anything but happy at being shipped off to a cold and hostile land and there being required to construct their own goals. All tried to effect escapes, and some few actually succeeded. Among these was a red-head by the name of Prentice, who left his wife and child to sneak off to freedom. After laboriously constructing over a long time a cache of necessities, he escaped one night, and took up a life of freedom, if not of comfort, in the woods. He even married an Indian wife and founded a farm with the aid of some cattle which he found roaming the forest. Here he lived his life, at first sullenly, and then more peacefully, as he began to taste the pleasures of honesty and the rewards of toil. He finally reformed to such an extent that he laid down his life for the rest of his family when they were caught by a flood.

The Indians were perplexed by the presence of the men who came in big ships. The white man did not harm them, nor did they make war on their tribe, but there was something about them which inspired fear. They gave presents and wore great smiles, but did they not on occasion steal some of the warriors and take them to the magic settlement? And after taking them, they did not kill them, as one would obviously expect, but treated them kindly. It was all very hard to comprehend. But there was little conflict between the two groups, because neither antagonized the other. The Indian was peaceful but wary, the white man tolerant but uninterested.

The fatherland did not send enough supplies to the struggling colony, and for a long time the group almost failed from starvation. The men did not know how to obtain food by hunting, nor were they sufficiently proficient at farming to meet their needs. A supply ship was wrecked on the journey from England, and this created yet more difficulty. However, in spite of hardships of this sort, in spite of difficulties with the convicts, and in spite of the terrible loneliness which assailed everyone, the settlement held on tenaciously, and by the end of the book had achieved a firm foothold on the land.

It is a momentous tale, expressing well the vastness of the country and the diminutiveness of the puny attempt to settle it. It is packed with life and adventure, each one of the characters having a definite personality which makes him live. Miss Dark tells her story well, and gives it reality.

Football Teams End Disappointing Seasons; Winter Sports Begin

Prep Varsity and J-V teams have unfruitful year

Twenty-nine Players from both Teams Awarded Letters at Fall Dance

The Rutgers Prep gridiron squads have completed their 1941 season with none too successful a showing. The varsity dropped their opener to Morristown School and then bowed to Carteret Academy. Prep bowled over Newman and lost a heartbreaker to George School of Pennsylvania the following week. The Maroon and White concluded their season by being trampled by both Montclair and Newark.

The letters and certificates for both squads were given out at the December 5 football dance. Lettermen for the varsity were: co-captains Bob Havens and Danny Williams, Chuck Meissner, Bill Vogelsang, Brud Bispham, Dick Sexton, Bob Nafey, Phil Wight, George Mederer, Al Evans, Ed Gustafson, Johnny Linder, Bill Wurzbarger, Gordon Dunham, Bob Deming, Dominick Lategano, and Wilbur Houts. Lettermen for the J-V were: Bill Wurzbarger, George Mederer, and Dominick Lategano are the only varsity regulars that will be left by the 1942 graduation to Coach Walter Petke and Assistant Coach Holley.

The J. V. team lost its opener to Peddie School, and then held Pingry to a scoreless deadlock. However, when the game was replayed a week later, the Prep lightweights lost a bitterly fought contest 13 to 6.

The lettermen are: Captain Thomas Bishop, Don Conhagen, Linwood Lee, Andrew Cook, Fred Klein, Howard Woodruff, Edward Burroughs, Leonard Waterman, George Ziegler, Bill Pfaff, Bruce Odell, and Bob Beaudette. This year the coaching duties of the J. V.'s were taken over by Mr. Gariss, who replaced Mr. McClintock.

Sportstorial

by Dick Farkas

Another season of football disappointments has come to an end. Although the Prep team showed little of the '38 stuff, yet we did win a game and everyone did profit by the season's workout. Letters and certificates were awarded to the members of the Varsity and Junior Varsity teams at the December 5th dance held in their honor. We might add that the dance was one of the most successful dances this school has ever had.

Our basketball squads are beginning to take shape. Although the actual season does not get under way until after the Christmas vacation, much of the work must be done before we leave. As a member of the squad, I feel that we should have a good season. Everyone on the squad is doing his best. How about you doing your part in supporting the team? Editor-in-chief Bob Beaudette is planning to have a pep rally before our first game. He believes that it might give the team the extra something which has been lacking on the squads of the past two years.

The past school dance was but a sample of the success we can have in this school if the student body would back all events 100%.

It is indeed unfortunate that there is an insufficient amount of material to have a swimming team this winter, for there are certain individuals in school who are excellent swimmers. Tough Luck, Leonard! Coach Holley has turned out very successful teams in the past few years, and it is too bad that practically his entire squad was lost last graduation.

UNDEFEATED NEWARK ACADEMY ELEVEN ROUTS PREP IN SEASON FINALE, 37-0

The Rutgers Prep Varsity eleven closed its 1941 season by being vanquished by a far superior, and undefeated Newark Academy team at Newark, 37 to 0.

Mike Castrilli, high scoring fullback who tallied 25 points, sparked the Academy offense. The Essex county gridmen ripped their way through the Prep defense for four touchdowns in the first half, and gathered six-pointers in each of the last two quarters, to give the Prepsters their fourth defeat of the season.

Shortly after the opening kick-off, Newark Academy ploughed through the weak Rutgers Prep defense for 48 yards and a score in nine successive running plays. Mike Castrilli plunged over from the four yard line and booted the extra point. In the closing minutes of this same period, the Newark fullback traveled 13 yards for his second touchdown on a wide end-run.

Midway through the second quarter, Castrilli smashed over from the five yard marker, after a sustained drive of forty yards. With but a few seconds left in the half, Grymes passed to Kistler in the end-zone for the fourth tally, after Dickinson had ripped off tackle for 20 yards to set up the pass play.

The Scarlet and Black capitalized on a fumble to score in the third period and then drove from mid-field to plant the pigskin in pay dirt in the concluding period.

The meager Prep offense and defense were led by co-captains Danny Williams and Bob Havens. Bill "Rebel" Wurzbarger showed much determination on the offense, but the staunch Newark line was too much for him and the rest of the Prep backfield.

TARGET PRACTICE HELD IN RUTGERS GYM BY PREP BOYS

Recently a group of boys, under the leadership of Fred Howell, expressed interest in target shooting. Mr. Shepard, eager to see this sport revived, promptly made arrangements with the Military Department of the University for the use of the indoor rifle range.

At the present time, owing to increased military activity at the University, only a limited use of the range was obtainable. Also each boy must furnish his own rifle as well as ammunition. Since boys really interested in shooting would normally do this anyway, this requisite can in no wise be construed as being severe.

Whereas there has been mention of a team, for the present at least, owing to the small allotment of time, any very ambitious program in that regard will be necessarily out of the question. As is the case with any sport, daily practice is one of the many factors essential to the development of a team. It is possible that at some future date more shooting hours may be allotted to the Prep and thus outside competition be made more likely.

Some of the riflemen putting in an appearance so far are: Frank Clark, Marcus Wright, Fred Lambert, Bill Van Der Meulen, Andy Cook, Bob Nafey, Fred Howell, and Edwin Nelson. Mr. Roy is in charge of the group.

Already the boys are finding that even in a fifty foot range straight shooting taxes to the utmost the eyesight and nerves, and that after a two hour session they are ready to call it quits.

that the tastes of this year's Prep students seemed to be about the same as last year's. The results of the poll also corresponded almost exactly to the results of nation-wide surveys.

"Chattanooga Choo-Choo," which was at the height of its popularity when the balloting was taken, was voted as favorite popular song. It piled up forty-six points to lead "I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire" which polled twenty points. "You and I" was third and "Elmer's Tune" fourth. "Concerto for Two" and "Tonight We Love" followed in fifth and sixth places respectively.

Other such former favorites as "Alexander's Rag-Time Band," "Little Brown Jug," "The Blue Danube Waltz," and "Marie" ranked high on the list.

Pingry J-V Team Downs Prepsters by Score of 13-6

Prep's Solitary Touchdown Scored by Bill Pfaff in 1st quarter

The Prep Jay-Vee eleven traveled to Elizabeth on Monday, November 17, to play the Pingry lightweights and try to avenge the scoreless tie which the two teams had played a week before. However, the Pingry boys seemed to have the same idea, for they discouraged the Prepsters' efforts to the tune of 13 to 6.

Prep, playing without the services of two of its outstanding stars, Tommy Bishop and George Ziegler, got off to a good start in the first quarter when Don Conhagen passed twenty yards to Bill Pfaff in the end zone. Conhagen's attempted rush for the extra point just fell short.

In the second quarter the Elizabeth boys began to move. Led by Nugue and Cuneo they drove to the one-yard line where Cuneo plunged over for six points. An attempted place kick failed to garner the extra point.

Through the third period the two clubs battled fiercely, but a beautiful thirty yard pass from Cuneo to Brader gave Pingry a surprise touchdown. The Blue converted on a drop kick. Prep recovered a fumble deep in Pingry territory in the final period, but time ran out before the Maroon was able to capitalize on the break.

Don Conhagen's running and passing sparked the Prep offensive, while Okerson and Lategano gave commendable performances in the line.

VARSITY CHOOSES HAVENS, WILLIAMS; J-V's NAME BISHOP

In the elections of captains to the Varsity and Jay-Vee football squads, which took place soon after the season ended, the varsity squad chose to elect co-captains, choosing in a very close ballot Dan Williams and Bob Havens, both seniors. The Jay-Vees chose their injured halfback, Tom Bishop.

Though this is only his first year at Prep, Danny Williams has become well liked by the boys and teachers alike. Dan's shy manner when he is off the field changes to aggressiveness when he takes to the gridiron. In spite of his size Dan held up his position at quarterback nobly, always seeming to know the right play to call. Danny is now out for basketball.

Bob Havens has also achieved his share of popularity in his first year at Prep. Bob's stalwart work at his guard position was always a source of inspiration to his team-mates.

Tom Bishop is a member of THE ARGO staff and the basketball team as well as an outstanding football player. On the gridiron Tom sparked the Jay-Vee eleven through most of the season. In the Jay-Vee's scoreless tie with Pingry, however, his elbow was injured and he was unable to complete the schedule.

It is felt that excellent judgment was shown in the selection of the captains from among the large group of Prep students who all worked faithfully to chalk up a successful season for the school.

Gloria Callen, Swimming Star Attends Dance

Smashes Two World's Records
at Rutgers Gymnasium
on Same Night

Miss Gloria Callen, outstanding woman swimmer in the world, reigned as queen of the Rutgers Prep dance last Friday, and hardly a more popular queen could have been chosen. Miss Callen, who thrilled capacity crowds for two successive nights at the Rutgers University Water Carnival, came to the dance directly after her sensational Friday night show in which she smashed two world records formerly held by Eleanor Holm.

Miss Callen arrived in New Brunswick on Thursday afternoon, accompanied by her father and mother. She made a tour of the Rutgers campus and was photographed in the various departments of the college, posing with students. In her appearances at the Water Carnival on Thursday and Friday nights, she gave a demonstration of her swimming style which has carried her to fame. She also showed her famous speed turns. On Friday night she received the applause of the spectators for her magnificent record-breaking performances.

At the dance Friday night Miss Callen was escorted by Bill Wurzbarger. Bill and Mr. Shepard alike will not hesitate to testify that she is a fine dancer. Miss Callen was especially popular when the pictures were being taken. Numerous Prep fellows grouped around her so that they might be in the same photograph. Certainly it must be said that her appearance increased the attendance of the dance and heightened its spirit.

Home Sweet Home sent the dancers on their way after a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

Because of the large attendance at the dance, Mr. Shepard and school president Dick Farkas found it appropriate to award letters to those members of the varsity and jayvee football teams who found it possible to attend the school dance.

Mr. Holley Decides Against Swim Team

At the reopening of school after the Thanksgiving recess, an announcement was made concerning the approaching swimming season. Many boys responded to the call for recreational swimming and a few for competitive swimming.

The school has been privileged to use the Rutgers University pool and facilities, and has often turned out good teams. However, this year because of a deficiency of material Mr. Holley, able swimming coach, has decided against forming a complete swimming team. Nevertheless, one relay team, to compete in various meets about the state, will be formed of the material available. Geipel, Pfaff, Waterman, Coddington, Conhagen, and Meissner will, in all probability, be used in making up this team.

SAIDENBURG SYMPHONY

concert hall. He continued his violin studies in London at the Guildhall School of Music and at 17 made his formal concert debut in that city. For the occasion, a friend of his father's lent him the famous Betts' Stradivarius now in the Library of Congress.

By 1930 Primrose had decided to devote himself to the larger instrument, the viola, and in that year he accepted an offer to join the London Quartet. In 1931, he gave his first solo performance in Rio de Janeiro. It was there that a well-known authority said, "There has never existed a viola player with such technique." After the disbanding of the London Quartet, Primrose realized his keenest ambition when he began his own chamber music organization, the Primrose Quartet.

The program for Sainenburg's concert was as follows:

Christmas Concerto	Corelli
Serenade (Eine Kleine
Nachtmusik)	Mozart
Concerto for Viola and String
Orchestra	Handel
William Primrose, soloist
Intermission
Serenade for Strings	Tschaikowsky
Trauermusik for Viola and String
Orchestra	Hindimith
William Primrose, soloist
Suite for Strings	Bridge
