STUDENTS GO TO OPERA;
SEE BARBER OF SEVILLE

by Caroline Leully '64

A group of Prep students will leave the building late tomorrow morning to see the Metropolitan Opera Company presentation of The Barber of Seville by Rossini. Mr. Zezen-ski and Mr. Dumarac will conduct the New York trip.

The Italian composer, Gioachino Antonio Rossini (1792-1868) composed the comic opera in thirteen days. The Barber of Seville opens in Seville with the Count Almaviva courting the beautiful Rosine, a ward of old Dr. Bartolo who also wants to marry her. Bartolo is against their love and Almaviva employs Figaro, a popular, nousey barber, to further his affair.

To fool Bartolo, Almaviva poses as a poor wanderer, a drunken soldier, a music teacher, and finally, after much intrigue, confusion, and fun, Almaviva marries Rosine. Rossini combines a sense of humor and a good story to produce an immortal opera.

EUGENE WARSHAW '64 AND DONALD NARDONE '65 ENJOY BROADCASTING AS HAM RADIO OPERATORS

by Georgia Spiro '66

Two Rutgers Preparatory School students, Eugene Warsaw '64 and Donald Nardone '65 enjoy the interesting and useful hobby of amateur radio operation. Warsaw and Nardone are able to converse with friends whether a block away or half way around the world.

Eugene became interested in amateur radio when his father's friend first introduced him to it three years ago. He went to New York to take a test to receive his license. The test was based on the theory of radio and reception and transmission of the International Code.

Warsaw constructed two transmitters; one of which is twice as powerful as New Brunswick's commercial station. The messages are relayed by the International Code. This ham is now in the process of building a kilowatt sideband transmitter, and working towards an advanced class license.

He has talked to 700 people in the U.S. and around the world, including France, Yugoslavia, and Libya.

Don Nardone, also a ham, first found interest in radios when he met a radio operator aboard an Argentine passenger liner. He received his license from the F.C.C. a year and a half ago. Nardone has code transmitters adaptable for A.M., F.M., and S.S.B. Because of limited time, his plans for construction of a kilowatt amplifier will be carried out when he has more free time.

Nardone has handled cross-country messages. Anyone interested in visiting these stations is cordially invited.

Varsity Drops Second Scrimmage to Edison

The Rutgers Prep baseball team scrimmaged the Edison High School baseball team on April 2. The Prep team lost 7-1. The Prepsters made four hits, one each by Ray Leachey, Billy Landau, Jeff Kirsch, and Mike Jacobs, as opposed to six hits by the Edison team. The lone Prep run was scored when Jeff Kirsch doubled with a man on second.

Charlie Collard pitched the first five innings while Brett Lane went the rest of the way. The coach, Mr. Robert Reisener was satisfied with the pitching but emphasized the need for better defensive play and hitting strength. The Prep batters struck out only three times, a great improvement over previous scrimmages. Mr. Reisener plans more scrimmages in order to get the baseball team in shape for the season's opener against Jamesburg, April 10th.

Philosophers Discuss B. Russell's Opinions

The Philosophy Club, under the direction of Mr. Sorrel R. Paskin, has been discussing the book Why I Am Not A Christian, by Bertrand Russell.

In 1940 Russell's appointment to C.C.N.Y. was cancelled after he was judged unfit to teach because of his radical ideas on religion and morality. In his book, which was used against him in the trial, Russell provides a logical discussion on the relative merits of religion as we know it, and expresses his personal beliefs.

The heated debates provoked by this collection of essays have, on occasion, continued for many minutes after the period's end.

These debates, combined with Mr. Paskin's desire to cover more material than the club has been able to in the past, has forced him to schedule Monday meetings in addition to the regular Friday club meetings.
